

Clinton Lewis earned his Bachelor of Science degree in mathematics with a minor in chemistry from Grambling State University in 1967. Upon graduation, Lewis entered into a long career of over 30 years in the information technology field, working as a programmer, manager, software project manager, and executive manager at International Business Machines, better known as IBM. Following his time there, he held the position of adjunct professor in the department of mathematics and computer science, was a programmer at North American Rockwell, and most recently became a board member of the Trinity Visions Community Development Corporation. During his career, Lewis has been honored with several awards including 'Programming Excellence', 'Management Excellence', and 'Change Agent'. Lewis has one daughter, Kellye Davis, who resides in Dallas, TX and is known to many children in the community as 'Papa'. He has provided his services as a chairman, founding member, and executive assistant for Trinity Visions, CDC.
